Is the amount of money we have loaned since we opened for business. We have not lost one cent on a bad loan, and have no paper on hand now that could be considered even doubtful. A bank is no safer than its loans, therefore we are very cautious about this feature of our business. If you apply to us for a loan and it is not granted, do not fall out with us; we are using our best judgment for the protection of our depositors, and we think our depositors come before our borrowers in a matter of this nature.
